Lesson Content Overview:

Six months before Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated, he spoke to a group of students at Barratt Junior High School in Philadelphia. This is an excerpt of his speech October 26, 1967.

I want to ask you a question, and that is: What Is Your Life 's Blueprint? Whenever a building is constructed, you usually have an architect who draws a blueprint, and that blueprint serves as the pattern, as the guide and as the model for those who are to build the building, and a building is not well erected without a good, solid blueprint.

Now each of you is in the process of building the structure of your lives, and the question is whether you have a proper, a solid and a sound blueprint.

I want to suggest some of the things that should be in your life 's blueprint. Number one in your life's blueprint should be a deep belief in your own dignity, your worth and your own somebodiness. Don 't allow anybody to make you feel that you 're nobody. Always feel that you count. Always feel that you have worth, and always feel that your life has ultimate significance. Secondly, in your life 's blueprint you must have as the basic principle the determination to achieve excellence in your various fields of endeavor. You're going to be deciding as the days, as the years unfold what you will do in life-what your life 's work will be. Set out to do it well.

And I say to you, my young friends, that doors are opening to your doors are opening to you doors of opportunities that were not open to your mothers and your fathers and the great challenge facing you is to be ready to face these doors as they open.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, the great essayist, said in a lecture in 1871, "If a man can write a better book or preach a better sermon or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, even if he builds his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door. "

This hasn't always been true but it will become increasingly true, and so I would urge you to study hard, to burn the midnight oil; I would say to you, don't drop out of school. I understand all the sociological reasons, but I urge you that in spite of your economic plight, in spite of the situation that you're forced to live in, stay in school. And when you discover what you will be in your life, set out to do it as if God Almighty called you at this particular moment in history to do it.

Don't just set out to do a good job. Set out to do such a good job that the living, the dead or the unborn couldn't do it any better. If it falls your lot to be a street sweeper, sweep streets like Michelangelo painted pictures, sweep streets like Beethoven composed music, sweep streets like Leontyne Price sings before the Metropolitan Opera. Sweep streets like Shakespeare wrote poetry. Sweep streets so well that all the hosts of heaven and earth will have to pause and say: Here lives a great street sweeper who swept his job well.

If you can't be a pine at the top of the hill, be a shrub in the valley. But be the best little shrub on the side of the hill. Be a bush if you can't be a tree. If you can't be a highway, just be a trail. If you can't be a sun, be a star. For it isn't by size that you win or fail. Be the best of whatever you are.

Instructional Sequence:

Opener:

Ask students to picture themselves at the age of 25. They should respond to the following prompts: Where do you think you'll be working and living? Now think back to your current age—list 3-5 things you will need to accomplish to get to that point.

- o SEL Connection: Have you ever been a victim of bullying or teasing? Have you witnessed others being bullied or teased? How did you handle either situation?

Individual Work, Speech Analysis:

Pass out the text of King's October 26, 1967, speech at Philadelphia titled "What Is Your Life's Blueprint" and provide students the link to a video of the speech. Students will work independently to watch and read along with Dr. King's address.

Formative Assessment:

- Students will re-read King's "What's Your Life's Blueprint" excerpt. In a short essay, students will compare their life's plan with King's words.

"I want to suggest some of the things that should be in your life's blueprint. Number one in your life's blueprint should be a deep belief in your own dignity, your worth and your own somebodiness. Don't allow anybody to make you feel that you're nobody. Always feel that you count. Always feel that you have worth, and always feel that your life has ultimate significance. Adaptations for Student Needs

IEP:

- Sizes of student groups range
- Students team up with a peer partner, while others would prefer to work individually.
- There is a variety of small-group work
- Chunking information
- Visual cues and wait time
- Visual supports (maps, images, PowerPoint slides, handouts)
- Assessments will be modified, and students given extra time

ELD

- Modified/simplified reading material
- Content-related lists/handouts of key terms
- Text is supported by visuals and connected to real-life experiences
